

Grade 4.4.2 Wilson fluency

Marven of the Great North Woods

in flu en za de cide ed
o ver hid den log ging
him self qui et ly a ble

influenza decided over hidden logging himself quietly able

After his great-aunt Sadie died of the influenza, Marven's mother and father decided to send him away from the city to keep him safe. Marven heard them talk it over with Uncle Moishe and Aunt Ghisa one night as he sat hidden on the stairs.
"How will he get along in a logging camp? A boy of ten, all by himself?"
asked Aunt Ghisa.
"I want him to live to be a man," said Mama quietly. "He must go."

After his great-aunt Sadie died of the influenza, Marven's mother and father decided to send him away from the city to keep him safe. Marven heard them talk it over with Uncle Moishe and Aunt Ghisa one night as he sat hidden on the stairs.
"How will he get along in a logging camp? A boy of ten, all by himself?" asked Aunt Ghisa.
"I want him to live to be a man," said Mama quietly. "He must go."